

YALE COLLEGE

ENDORSEMENT OF A STUDENT'S REQUEST TO APPLY CREDIT FOR WORK DONE OUTSIDE YALE TOWARD THE DISTRIBUTIONAL REQUIREMENTS*

[FOR THE CLASS OF 2009 AND SUBSEQUENT CLASSES]

With the appropriate authorizations, course credit earned at another university may be applied toward the distributional requirements for the bachelor's degree and to those for the sophomore and junior years whether or not it is counted toward the 36-course-credit requirement for graduation. Credit from outside Yale may not be applied toward the distributional requirements for the freshman year. Note particularly that Yale does not award course credit or distributional credit for courses completed at another college or university before the student graduated from secondary school. (See the Academic Regulations, Chapter III of the Yale College Programs of Study, section O.)

(First Name) (Middle) (Last Name) (Class) (College) (Student ID Number)

may receive one course credit toward the distributional requirements on the basis of the following course
